"Have a chew of dulse," said Crubog . . . "What is it?" asked Potter, half-suspiciously. "Seaweed. " "Is it good for the virility? . . . " "And what is the virility?" asked the old man. "Does it make you more attractive to women?" Potter shouted in his ear. "No. " "What is it good for then?" "WortnS. " "Worms?" "Intestinal worms. You'll never again pass a worm if you eat a fistful of dulse first thing in the morning and last thing at night. " "If it's an anthelmintic, I'll try a spot of it," said Potter. - From Bogmail, a novel by Patrick McGinley (1981) With modern techniques of chemical isolation and structure determination, the old distinction between herbal and chemical remedies has largely been broken down. By chemotherapy we now mean simply the treatment of disease by drugs (the word medicines has unhappily been eclipsed). The distinction made between chemotherapy and non chemical therapy (e. g. , radiation, physiotherapy, surgical intervention, immu nomodulation) remains useful despite some minor overlapping. The present work thus deals with drugs and their use in parasitic disease. (Since we are dealing with the treatment of incipient as well as established infection, chemotherapy subsumes chem oprophylaxis as well as chemotherapeusis per se.) Definition of parasitism as a biological modus vivendi, although important in itself, need not concern us here. We need simply delimit the scope of the book, and that is easily done.

I designed my book "Parasites and Worms in Humans," as a medical reference textbook for anyone with an education between high-school graduates, through and including medical students. It will be easily understood by the average lay person who has no medical background knowledge, yet contains enough referenced information for those readers who need deep medical details. This book is an educational teaching tool, with the same information I would present at a weekend educational seminar discussing parasites and worms. As a teaching tool, for educational purposes only, I also included the exact remedial medical protocols I use on all of my parasite and worm patients. I have six different remedial protocols I use with all of my patients, labeled A, B, C, D, E, and F. I select the protocol best suited for each patient, based on the type and severity of their parasitic infestation. Also give detailed instructions on how any lay person or medical student, can easily obtain, directly from the manufacturer(s), the exact herbal medicines I personally use in my practice when treating my parasite and worm patients. As a textbook, I also educate on the most common parasites and worms that can, and do, infest mankind from any part of this globe, including highly developed countries such as the USA. Even though there are several more types and variations of parasites and worms that can be taught in either one weekend seminar or in one book, I always choose from one of my six remedial protocols whenever I treat any of my patients, including parasites and worms not listed in my book. For educational reference, I use Remedial Protocol "C" most often with my parasite and worm patients, sometimes repetitively if necessary. This book is for educational purposes only and has not been evaluated by the FDA.

The Allergic Pet Xlibris Corporation

This book intensively examines the efficacy of plant-derived products that have been used for over a thousand years by practitioners of so-called Traditional Chinese Medicine in the light of recent chemotherapeutics. The chapters were written by renowned Chinese medical researchers and are supplemented by results obtained in German antiparasitic research projects.

Parasites and emerging diseases are a major threat of our time, which is characterized by an enormous increase in the size of the human population and by an unbelievably rapid globalization that has led to the daily transport of millions of humans and containers with goods from one end of the earth to the other. Furthermore the slow but constant global warming offers new opportunities for many agents of diseases to become established in new areas. Therefore it is essential that we develop precautions in order to avoid epidemics or even pandemics in overcrowded megacities or at the large-scale farm animal confinements that are needed to secure a steady flow of food in the crowded regions of the world. Of course intensive research in the field of chemotherapy since 1900 has produced unbelievable breakthroughs in therapies for formerly untreatable and thus deadly diseases. However, a large number of untreatable diseases remain, as well as a constantly growing number of agents of disease that have developed resistances to standard chemical compounds. As such, it is not only worthwhile but also vital to consider the enormous amounts of information that have been obtained by human "high cultures" in the past. Examples from the past (like quinine) or present (like artemisinin, a modern antimalarial drug) show that plant extracts may hold tremendous potential in the fight against parasites and/or against vector-transmitted agents of diseases.
